HUMAN SACRIFICE AMONG THE INDIANS OF ALASKA.—It may be unknown to your readers that the Indians of some portions of this territory have been in the habit of sacrificing the life of one or more slaves on the death of any of their chiefs or medicine men. This custom is based on the supposition that in their spirit land the services of such slaves are necessary to the comfort and well being of the departed; and to avoid the trouble of employing such in that happy hunting ground they dispatch one of his human chattels at the same moment the spirit of the warrior chief takes its upward flight. An instance of this occurred here three weeks ago. About ten o'clock at night the sentinel on the palisade gate, leading to Indian town, was attracted by the wailing cry of a squaw. Inquiring the cause of her distress, she gave him to understand that her son was then up, preparatory to being stabbed—the usual mode of dispatching them—for the purpose above mentioned.

The commandant of the post was notified, and an officer was sent to rescue the intended victim of such barbarity. On the officer's arrival a strange sight presented itself. On a bed lay the dying chief; an intelligent looking boy of ten or twelve years of age, bound hand and foot, looked the incarnation of despair; around him, with drawn knives, stood the relatives of the dying man, at whose signal they would be buried in the vitals of the trembling youth. The sombre gloom of the apartment, lit up fitfully by the smoldering fire, the wild, unearthly sound of the tin-tin, and the wailing death-cry of the tribe outside the house, made up a picture to be appreciated only by a witness of the scene. The officer immediately released the boy and brought him to the garret, where he was kept until the family of the departed warrior promised not to molest him in future. This has been the second instance of the kind occurring here since our occupation of the territory.—Silko Cor. San Francisco Bulletin.

DAMASCUS, THE ETERNAL.—Damascus dates anterior to the oldest city in the world. It was founded by Uz, the grandson of Noah.—"The early history of Damascus is shrouded in the mists of antiquity."

Leave the matters written in the eleventh chapter of the Old Testament out, and no record of event has occurred in the world, but Damascus was in existence to receive it. Go back as far as you will into the vague past, here was always a Damascus.

In the writings of every century, for more than four thousand years, its name has been mentioned and its praise sung. The Damascus years are only moments, decades only flitting trifles of time. She measures time not by days, and months, and years, but by the empires she has seen rise and prosper, and crumble to ruin. She is a type of immortality. She saw the foundations of Babel and Thebes and Ephesus laid; saw them grow into mighty cities and amaze the world with their grandeur—and she has lived to see them desolate, deserted, and given up to owls and bats. She saw the Israelitish empire exalted, and she saw it annihilated. She saw Greece rise and flourish for two thousand years, and die. In her old age she saw Rome built; she saw it overshadow the world with its power; she saw it perish.

The few hundred years of Genoa and Venice might and splendor were, to grave old Damascus, only a trifling scintillation, hardly worth remembering. Damascus has seen all that has occurred on earth, and still she lives. She has looked upon the dry bones of a thousand empires, and she will see tombs of a thousand more before she dies. Old Damascus is by right the Eternal City.—Boston Investigator.

FIVE YOUNG MEN STRUCK DEAD IN ONE NIGHT.—We gave publicity to a rumor yesterday morning which we regarded at the time as nothing more; nevertheless we gave it for what it was worth and waited for further particulars. Yesterday we learned that the report was true, and we gathered the following additional facts: Five young men were gathered together in a room at Helena, Arkansas, one evening last week, and when they separated for the night were well as usual. Next morning the alarming fact was discovered that all were completely dead, and most of them suffering from a heavy pain in the head. No relief could be found in Helena, so four of them went to New Orleans for treatment, and one came to Memphis. This latter was Joe Robb, a young man who has lived here in the city. He formerly clerked at Mansfield & Higbee's drug store, and, previous to that time, clerked for Gilbert & Higbee. He is well known here, and meeting an acquaintance yesterday he was accosted, when he drew forth a pencil and wrote "I cannot hear a word you say, I have been struck dead." Various conjectures have been made as to the cause of this singular occurrence; some ascribe it to a direct visitation of Providence; others, of superstitious minds, to some subtle influence, not of God nor yet of man; while some seek to find a scientific cause in the condition of the weather, or what they ate and drank on the occasion.—Memphis Sun.

OLD ACQUAINTANCES.—The Paris telegram of the 25th which stated that "a person" who arrived in Paris at 8 o'clock that night from Epernay, and reported that he heard in that place of a Prussian defeat that occurred between Verdun and Chalons, &c., &c., recalls vividly some of the incidents of our war. It reminds us of that "intelligent contrabandist" who gave so much important intelligence to our Northern friends, and of that "reliable gentleman" who brought so much and such agreeable intelligence to us. Nor is this all. The "raiders" that were constantly hovering around Richmond have made their appearance in France under the name of Uhlans and are momentarily expected in the vicinity of Paris.—Rich. Whig.

THE LABORING MEN.—It seems strange, as the New York Express remarks, that labor congresses and conventions are never managed by downright laboring men, but are invariably managed and wire pulled by people who never did a day's work in a shop, or anywhere else excepting at political primaries and political caucuses. The Labor Congress now sitting in the West have uttered some bold truths; but they are pledging themselves to the support of very dangerous doctrines, through which course they will not be likely to benefit their chief cause.
